A campus in the absolute sense
Is a group of people;
Its fundamental wealth
Lies in the configuration
Of its members, the parts.
To the degree that the individuals
Are of high quality,
Is the campus a fine campus.
But, here may be seen
That surrounding
Which fills
The more common definition
Of campus:
A river, slumming over our doorstep;
A lane disappearing beneath far-off trees
A lane, gently lined with lilacs.

Greenery multiplying its greenness
Hard bark midst soft vegetation;
Tudor buildings about two quads;
And above it all,
A vast blue sky, uniting everything,
Larger and bluer than anywhere.

A building representing
One definition of science;
Knowledge, books, charts;
Laboratories and specimens.

Another building,
Which silhouettes itself
Against that blueness,
About which little need be said.

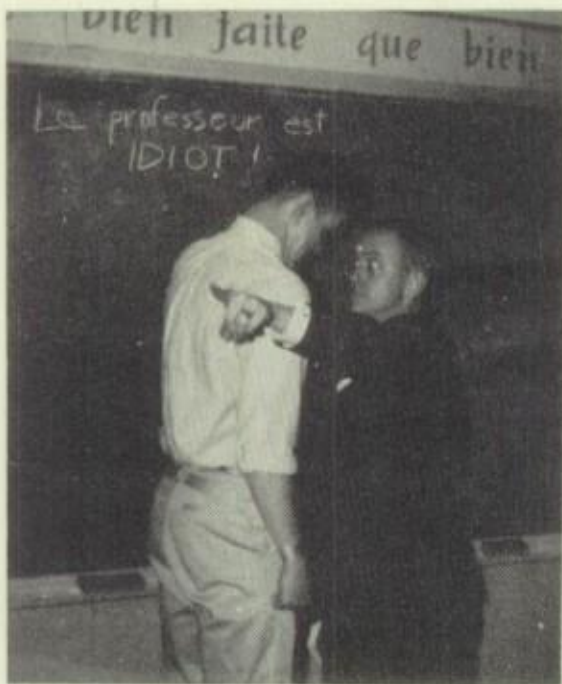

Planes,
Cars,
Trains.
Bus of The Principia.
Suitcases,
Pictures.
Summer gone,
Fall here.

Clothes to be put away;
New purchases to be placed;
Roommates to get to know.
Books to buy and
Resolutions to be made.
The year begins;
Fall,
And the year 1956-57
Begins.

Letters again,
Old and new friends.
Those helping hands.
Everything
Begins on a keynote
Of growth.

Classes,
Engravings on decks,
Windows pushed out,
Professors.
New faces
With busy eyes.
New hopes
With lazy minds.

Activities:
Concerts,
House parties,
Fads.
These are all
The things,
People,
And impressions.
Individualism,
Existentialism,
Confrere-ism.
The year at Principia!

"Angels we have here on high!"
 Bells,
 Ribbons,
 Bulbs, bright and colorful.
 White snow,
 Green trees,
 Red, gold spirits.
 "Peace on earth..."
 —serious, yet joyful.
 Home,
 Home for Christmas.

Happiness
 And giving.
 Our campus
 Was lighted
 With frivolity,
 Unity of the season.
 It was a time
 For all to gain
 From the happiness
 Of everyone else.

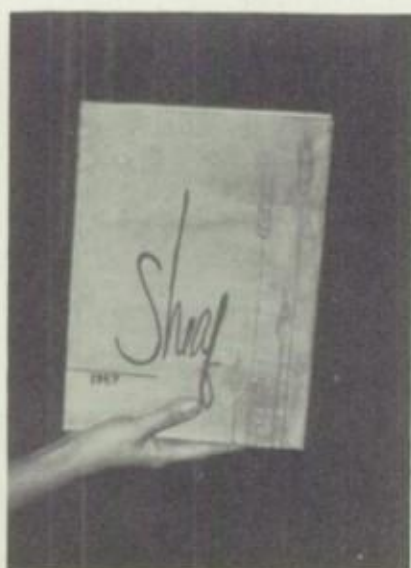

Cordial social functions,
Fun and free expression—
The crispness of winter.
Beat-up sleds with
Worn-down brushes—
A picture of winter.

Snow, snow, and ice.
Mother Nature
Paid us
Generous visits.
Cold, sheet-white snow,
Tracks across the lawn,
Hot chocolate.
Between the snowflakes
Fell our fondest dance,
Marked by warm
Good-naturedness and conviviality.
Another memory,
Imbued with the companionship
Of friends—
That substance
Which makes everything enjoyable.

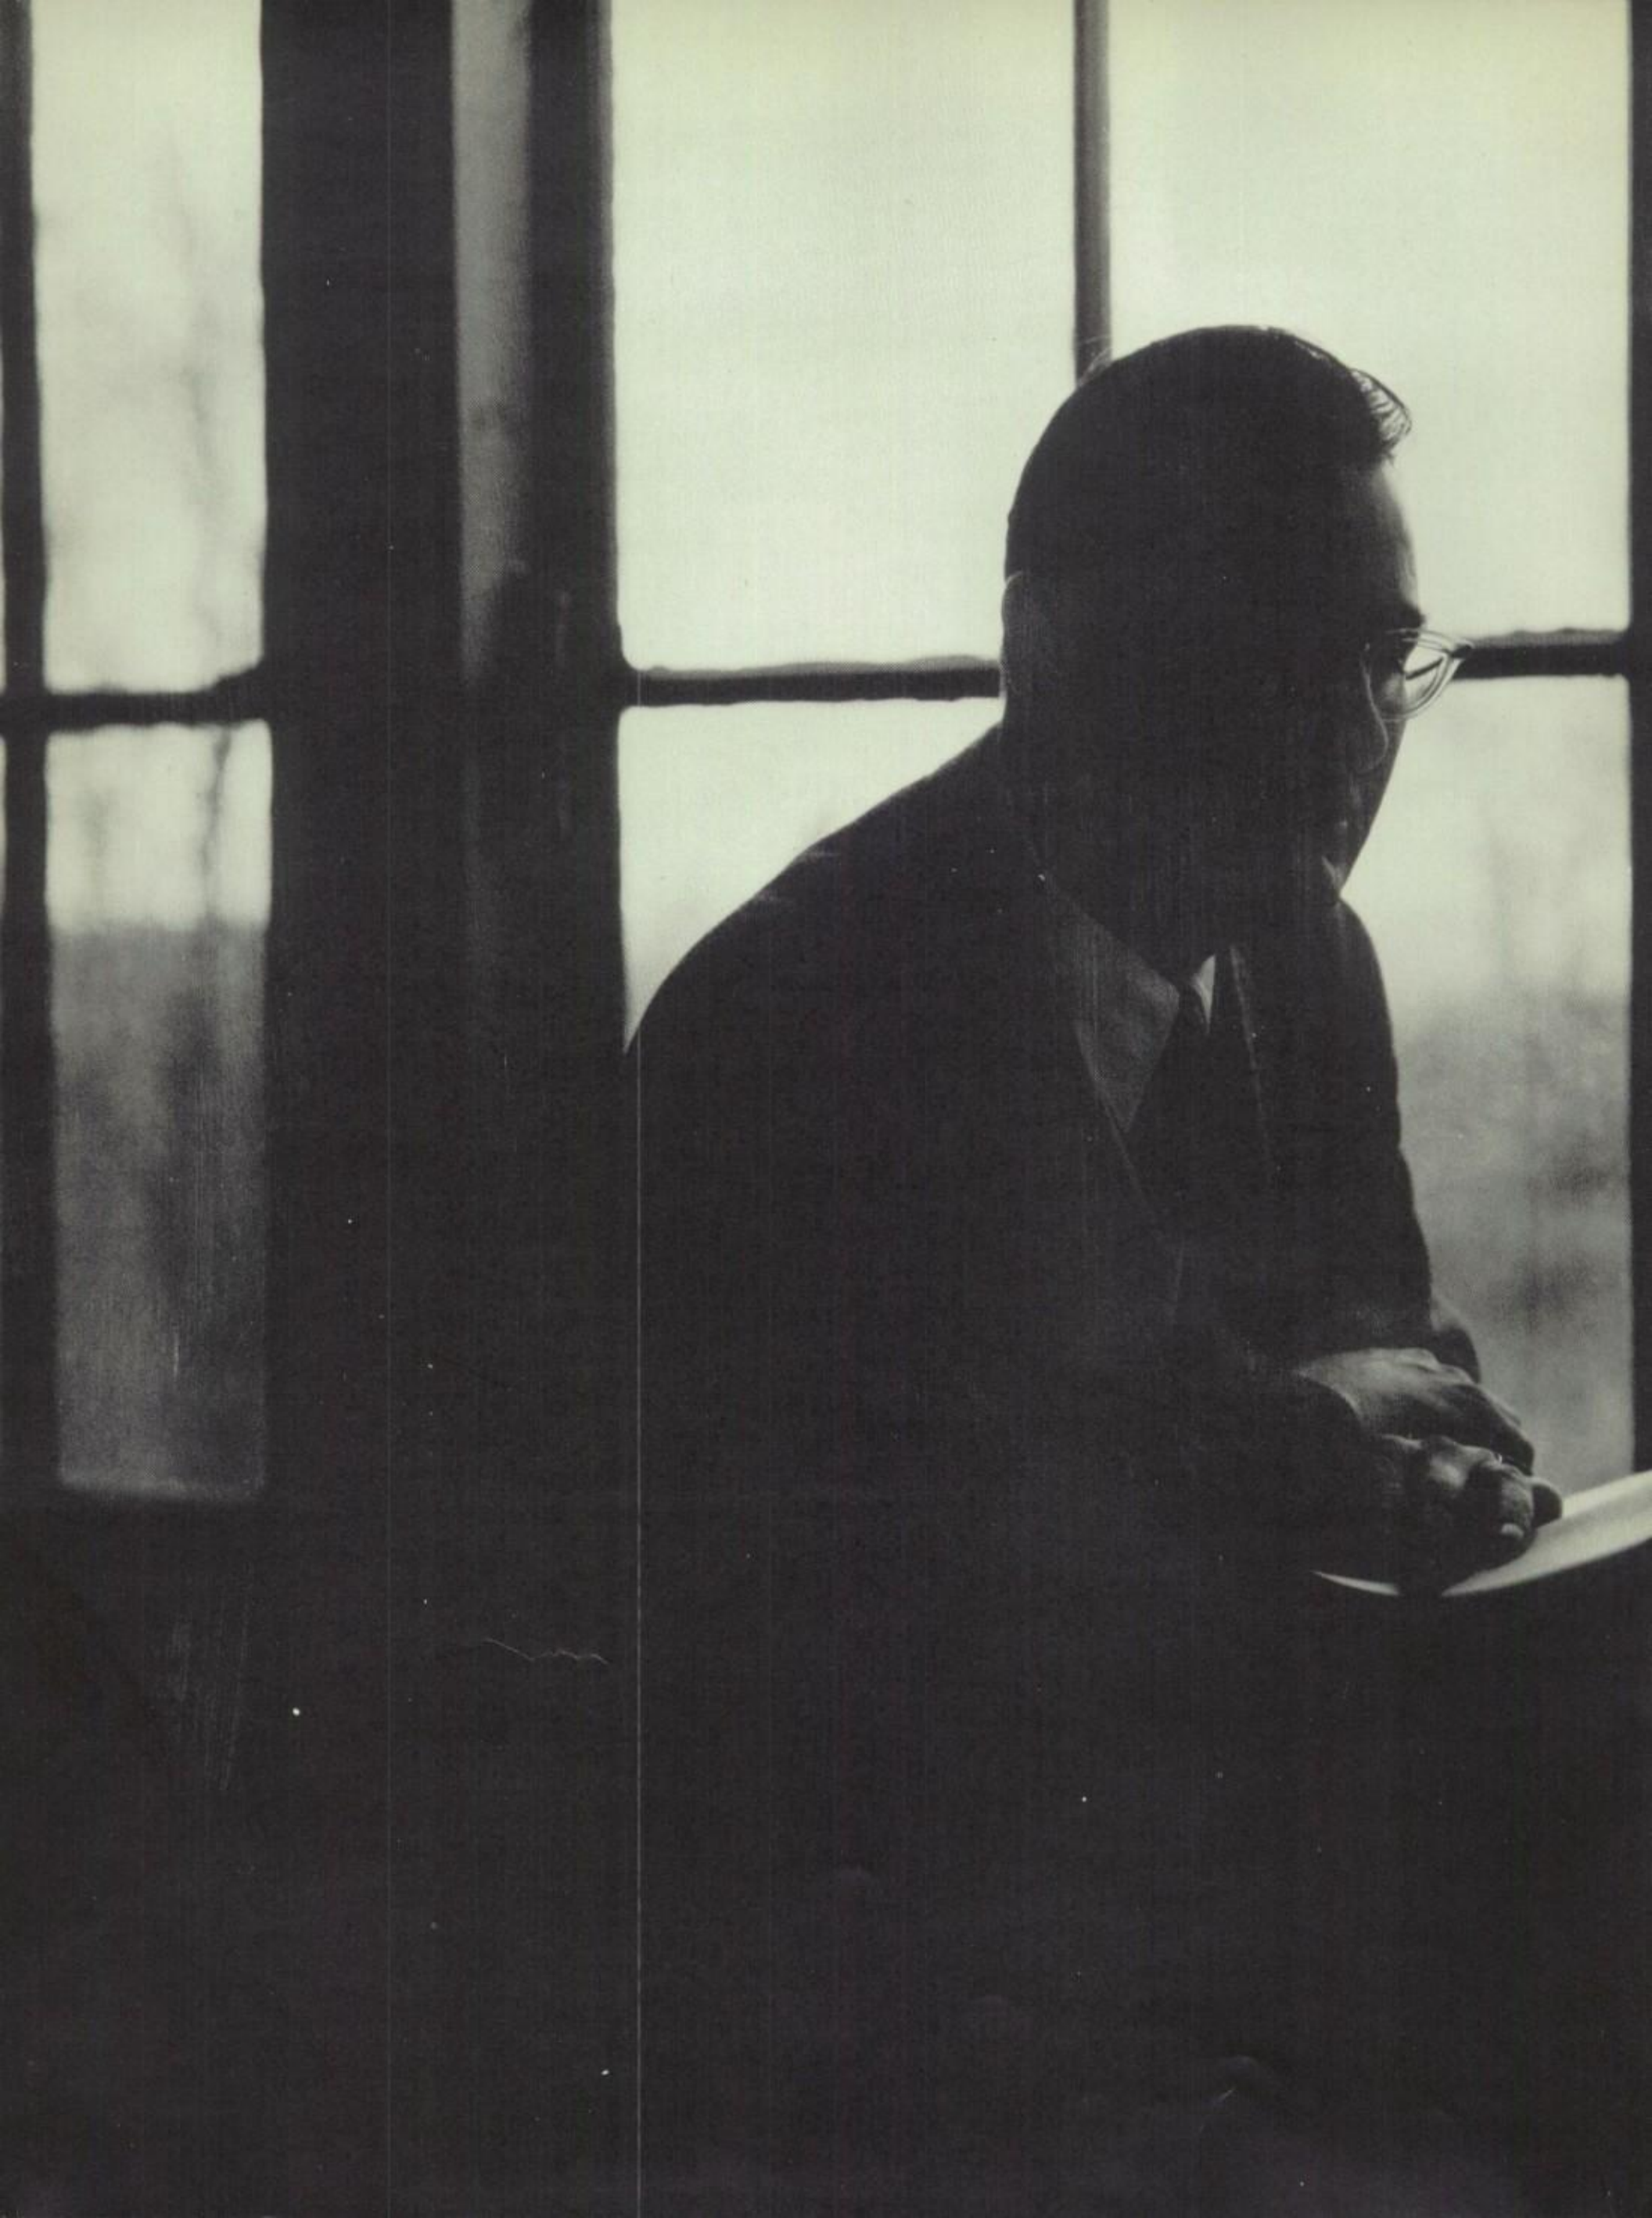

And then the sun;
Spring at last.
Bloom,
Fruition.
Picnics,
Walks,
Along green covered paths.
We prepare for new scenes
In leaving.

Books contain many varying thoughts;
 They may also present pictures—
 Actual or verbal.
 Watch for what has been close to you;
 This is your chronicle.
 A book—a light—
 LIGHT, then, our theme.

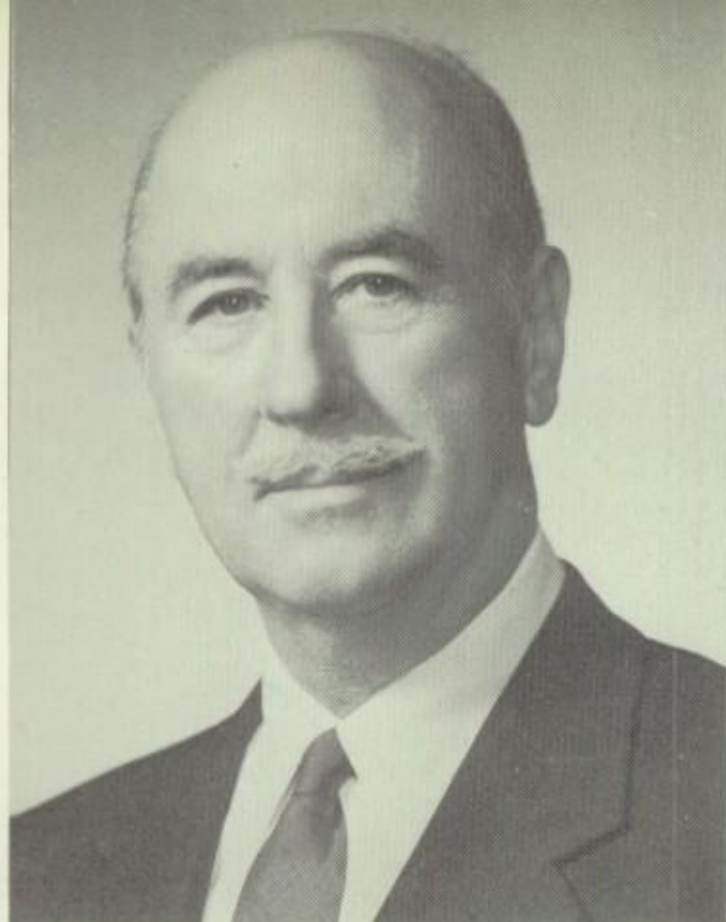

The Sheaf 1957

Administration

Lights, torches, flames, brilliance, lamps;
Lamps to light one's way up to bed,
Lamps to illumine dimly worn pages,
Lamps to fend ships off from rocky ruin.
And lamps as symbols, perhaps cliché-like,
Yet, effective, least-wise near truth.
There are lightings other than those of flame:
Sparks of exhortation, fires of accomplishment;
The ablutionary torch of suffering,
And the blaze of acrimony.
Earth bears mankind;
Mankind bears individual man;
Individual man recognizes the lightings,
Is given them, attains them, falls to them,
Rises to them, and values them.
Men who use sparks and torches
To aid or to better
Or to make glow brighter their fellows
Are all teachers, instructors, provers.
Men who aid men to aid are forges, grates,
Upon which the coals separately rest,
Frameworks, ribbings, organizers, necessities.
Everything that burned before,
Everything that was thought or done,
Everything worthy.
Are the reddened coals.
Inspiration, yearning, courage
Are the fanning breezes,
Rising warmly upward;
The unity of teachers and teaching,
The stalwart Smithy.
And Man, intelligent, independent,
Man upright—forged and formed—
Is the strong, well-wrought cog,
Beautiful, complete, open.
The Smithy never is
Lacking of forge,
Nor of coal,
Nor of breeze,
Nor of metal.
The Man-Metal,
Man-Product Cog,
Never is lacking of Smithy.

Students

The educational sun is composite;
Therein source, ray, destination, landscape are one.

From over a radiant ridge,
The resplendent orb ties earth to itself,
In meaningful phosphorescence,
Fulmination, coruscation, illumination,
Unselfish, yet mutually beneficial.
Sun is the education; and to the landscape,
Us the people of our analogy,
There exists a self-elucidation:
The verdant tree itself strains
Up its fleshy verdure;
Nor do the bushes, grasses, herbs, and fields
Remain unstriving in passive helplessness
And lassitude—but join together, growing,
Previewing, renewing, reviewing, rising.
People come together, men, women, children,
The fearful, the friend, and the enemy.
Things change; situations, people, change;
And all mutation is elevation,
All a purposed iridescence, lucency,
Purposed to remove the shade
From off each thriving hill,
Vale, dale, brook, field, wood;
Purposed to draw the sun to noonday,
To leave no side undefended
Against any one-sided mold,
Which grows, a parasite,
In undiscovered shade.
We accept criticism
To kill this mold—
Activity to rub it off—
Activity, unspecialized,
To proportion well our lives, our views.
We see that unity of work,
Of play, of following, of leading,
Greet it willingly, help establish it.
It's a matter of groups:
Small groups, large groups,
Cliques, classes, houses.
It's a matter
Of unity
Of diversity,
Of friendship,
And of activity.

Student Government

Time was a sluggish darkness,
A great ebony void—there or here—inanity;
It gained meaning: a brass fundamental
Was grasped and pounded and polished.

Man took the brass, filled it
With the oil of human experience,
Raised up his hand, fearful, yet bold,
And lighted the brass.
And Order became, existing, generating.

In the wick of the lamp,
Man saw essential, the prime-mover,
Coordinator, correlator, builder,
Primeval, primitive, principal,
The law of laws—Order.

And this Order was expressed,
Is expressed, will be,

In organized—formal and informal—
Ever victorious,

Sensible, sound Democratic Government.

Thence, time was continuous daybreak,
Progression and founding,
Life, meaningful, because

Of proper relationship, common cause.

Order, government, is like a shell;

Communities pick it up,

Put something into it,

Create something living,

Something beyond a mere restraint

Upon animal instinct.

They give to their government

Those worthwhile and lustrous qualities,

Which are their peculiar needs:

A mutual welfare,

Unaggressive physical protection,

Mental and social betterment.

Government signifies order—

Always esteemed.

One bends over and lifts a tiny brazen-held candle
Up to waist height.

One takes the tiny brazen-held candle,
Walks into a room: an inky cell,
Gloomy hall, grand boudoir, salon.
And the rays, the ring of radiation,
Move outward, away from wick.

Sight then broaden;
Experience comes.

One looks about, up, down.

One glimpses the room,
Cell, hall, boudoir, salon,
Their particulars, now defined——

Experiences it, knows it, then.

He knows that he might
Exist without having seen widely far,
To the other end of the room——

But not so well,
So increasingly more richly.

One decides to plant
More candles there.

And each takes its place,
Its seat, its furrow;

For each must be in its
Peculiar position

To light a
Certain section.

Position,

Sight,

Experience,

15 students — studied, prepared all summer — AUGUST 23 — L-Day, leave for Europe Day — The S.S. Maasdam — aye, a sturdy ship — docked at Le Havre.

Voices — Zoe Wasson, "The English eat five times a day — tea;" Jan Johnson, "... watching an old lady smoke her pipe — cows were grazing — mountain boy and girl leading two snowy white goats homeward." Dave Thomas, "The trip was a lesson in adjusting." Judy Leonard on group living, "On many occasions we shared our ideas on every subject conceivable."

Highlights — students' lectures, extensive study — study in a foreign atmosphere.

Tea with Lady Astor; Bryon's Prisoner of Chillon — the group sat on the dark floor of the prison. Barbara Snodgress, "Two of our fellows were asked to sing a duet in English. The French didn't understand the words, but they got the meaning."

Avery Chope about a French Conductor, "... he could not speak a word of English, but he could gesticulate with his hands with an amazing degree of accuracy. This was all shown when I pulled the emergency cord..." Pete McCandless, "We say Dylan Thomas' scintillating verse-drama 'Under Milk Wood' with an excellent Welsh cast."

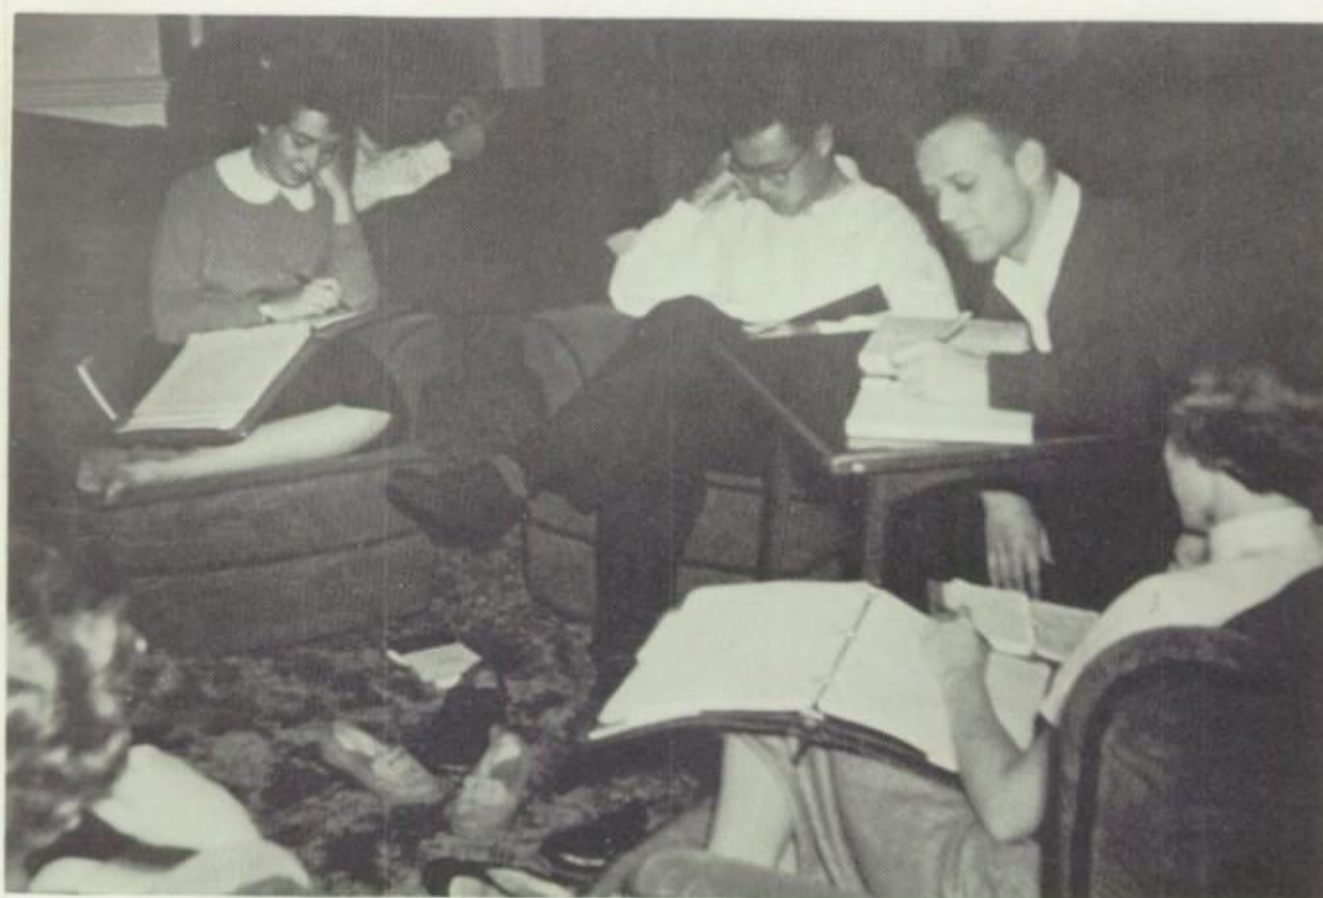

The "whole" man concept — travel, study, adventure — a foreign, yet warm land.

Dr. Leonard, leader of the group, "the experiment has been a very great success — exceeding in many respects the most optimistic expectations."

Stonehenge — How did those stones get there? Europe! Gay, exciting Europe — the Swiss Alps, the Matterhorn — Historic Paris, Fontainebleau, Versailles — and then, London.

"All play and no work makes . . ." English Social and Economic History — Burns, Wordsworth — projects: Gothic architecture, the London Theatre — English contemporary humor, even the British coal industry. Reports in the right setting. (left) Some studying squeezed in. (below)

Activities

That wide diaphanous web of light activity,
Which gives pause also to the industrious mind,
Envelopes us from time to time—
Its sparkle and shiny tinsel,
Changing design for changing season.
Highlights, head lights, foot lights, flood lights;
The gay spirit and conviviality
Of social occupation and preoccupation
Launch memory ships on future seas,
Crafts that unsuspectedly multiply
Into armadas of the past.
The shells may be pictured later,
The halls, fields, lawns, faces;
But not the laughs, the eyes,
The smells, glances—
Emotions as a unit.
So the call comes
To appreciate the bygone
While it's here, unadulterated,
Realistic, almost stable.
Some have verbally denied
The worth of social commingling;
But others have proved
That relationships with one another
Are manifested not only in enjoyment,
But also in meaningful contrast.
And what is wholeness
Except a proper concept
Of relations, of contrasts?
Then, the time is come
To make merry;
The fleeting brings purpose
To the lasting.
Intelligent social activity
Strikes its own
Ephemeral, necessary keynote.
Be merry and know why!
Eat, drink, and laugh!
Eat, drink, laugh,
And forget
This poem!

Athletics

The symbol of understanding is light;
A logical representative,
For as light makes us see
The concrete things of life,
So does sure-founded understanding
Make known to us
The nuances of self-control.
Self-betterment, and generosity—
Qualities which lead man
From ignorance to intelligence,
The lack of which
Makes struggle in life.
"Know thyself" invites all progress.
It is found in mental activity,
Social and esthetic activity,
In the clear knowledge
Of the benefit inherent
To physical activity
And mature sportsmanship.
Collectively lifting a joke
To pull hopes to fulfillment,
Seeing one's capabilities,
Enlarging them,
Creates an individual,
Balanced, thoughtful,
Oft times more sincere.
Yet, with it all:
*The golden man
Is the golden rule
Of the whole man.*
Excess is lack of balance,
Lack of understanding.
The whole man
Stands equal,
Intelligent,
In all.
